Edwin Adams, the celebrated actor, died recently at Melbourne, Australia, whither he had gone to fill a dramatic engagement. He died of consumption, the discase being doubtless aggravated by the long voyage.

Mr. Adams was born in Massachusetts in 1834, and soon after his debut became a star in various specialties at leading theatres, and he was especially well received in Baltimore, at Laura Keene's theatre, in the Ragpicker of Paris, the Gunmaker of Moscow, the Marble Heart, Enoch Arden, and other dramas.
